

News From Mars Class

Friday 10th July 2015

We have had a really fun and busy week in Mars class. In literacy we have been exploring the story of the Three Little Pigs. We have re-told the story using role-play and through our writing. It has been very exciting and we look forward to looking at a different version of the story next week!

We also had a lovely time on our school trip to the library and Riverside Park.

In maths we have been learning about direction and position. We have been very practical in directing our partners around the hall, using very specific instructions.

There has been lots happening on our growing table this week. The plant with sunlight, water but no soil has grown the most. We have found this really interesting and have made lots of observations on this.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone for their support over the last few months from parent helpers, to everyone contributing to the class in lots of different ways. So thank you!

We look forward to our last full week together.

Best wishes,
