

India.

India, which is located in South Asia, is the seventh largest country in the world. It has a population of more than one billion people making it the second largest populated country in the world, after China. The capital city of India is New Delhi, and the currency used is Rupee. If you look carefully at the map, you will see that India has a number of bordering countries, including: Pakistan, China, Nepal, Bhutan, Bangladesh and Burma.

Weather

India has three main seasons. The cooler winter months last from October to February. Summer follows with hot, dry weather bringing drought to many parts of the country until June.

When Monsoon season starts, warm winds blow in from the Indian oceans. Bringing heavy tropical rains that flood the street. During the monsoons, there can be fierce storms called cyclones.

The government have thought of an idea which will help to save the rain from the monsoon season for the dry months. They want to build dams to hold the water. Dams are big holes in which water can be stored.